From the Rector

Dear Friends,

This month – on the second Sunday of November – we have Remembrance Sunday. This year has been particularly poignant, in that we have remembered the 100th Anniversary of the beginning of the First World War. While I sometimes feel quite critical of the media, I do believe this year that the TV companies have been particularly good at commemorating what was to become one of the greatest / most awful / most transforming times in history. Of course, the date of Remembrance Sunday follows on from the end of the war, but it is the Sunday we particularly mark that great conflict, and appropriate to talk about the centenary at this time.

How history is approached has changed over the years, certainly since I studied history at school, and changed for the better, I have to say. When I was at school history was “Macro” – saw the big picture. In terms of the great war, history would tell us that 9 million soldiers and 7 million civilians were killed. History would talk about how technology was transformed. How human rights and views of humanity have changed. History would tell how that fantastic invention – the railways – allowed the magnitude of the horrors of the war, able to shift huge numbers of people around quickly, able to shift around the stores to sustain the fighting and armies involved. History would tell us how modern civilisation – a much more democratic civilisation – was created as a result of the great war. All of this is true.

However, how history is done has changed. Now the story is much more about the individual. This has been particularly represented in the media, as the focus has been on the stories of individual men and women, and the war they experienced, and the impact the war made on them, their families and their communities. There were heroes – awarded medals, recognised, showing amazing heroism. Just this morning on the telly there was a story of the battle at Nery in France on 1st September 1914 where three Victoria Crosses were “won” in an hour of fighting. Other stories have been of unsung heroes; of people both physically and psychologically scarred by the war; of ancillary services not recognised at the time; of families left behind, bereaved. So much more interesting and important – the stories of ordinary people. Some remarkable. Some unrecognised. Most not remembered. When we were down south we ministered in a community of about 20,000

Magazine & DNS Deadline

The next issue of Cyprian Life should be available in Church on Sunday 30th November 2014. The deadline for material is 16th November and the magazine will cover December 2014 and January 2015.

Please pass notes, articles, photographs and anything else that may be of interest to other members of the congregation to me by the deadline in order to give time for typesetting and printing. Electronic format is preferred since this is usually quicker and more accurate.

Please let me know about what is important to you. It is great to be able to report family events and things happening in our local community. Thank you.

The Diocese has now stopped producing the regular Diocesan News Service. The July/August 2014 issue was the last one. It and many of the previous issues can still be downloaded from the diocesan website: www.glasgow.anglican.org. Click on the link on the right hand side of the home page to access them. I can arrange to print copies for those who don't have internet access, though some copies are still available at the back of the church. There's also a link there to the news pages of the website, which continue to be updated regularly.

We are asked to keep sharing our news with everyone in the diocese by sending articles to the diocesan secretary, Chris Zochowski, who will arrange for them to be published by email and/or online. Email Chris at diocesansecretary@glasgow.anglican.org or post to c/o Diocesan Centre, 5 St Vincent Place, Glasgow G1 2DH.

The views expressed in Cyprian Life are not necessarily those of the Editor or of the Scottish Episcopal Church.

people. Almost 700 men from that community were killed in the First World War – the majority of young men between 18 and 35 – each a story, a tragedy, each a family with great pain, great suffering.

For me, this emphasis on the stories of ordinary people is absolutely right. Even the most evil of people recognised that – even Stalin said “one death is a tragedy, a million deaths is a statistic.” But as God's people, that emphasis on one person, the story of the ordinary people is where we are. Each individual matters. The ordinary matters.

There are lots of different ways of looking at the gospels of Jesus. One way is to look at the people he dealt with. Often he was dealing with individuals, or small groups, often dealing with an ordinary individual within the crowd. Often he dealt with the person who was seen as lowly, as outcast in the society in which he lived. This type of event is far more frequent than his preaching to great crowds. He dealt with a small group of lepers. An “unclean” woman in a great crowd. A Samaritan woman, despised by both the Jews and her own people. He dealt with a Pharisee in the middle of the night. He dealt with a tax collector who’d climbed a tree, in the midst of a crowd. Each time bringing love to the individual, love expressed in healing, acceptance, holding. To Jesus the individual mattered, the story of one person was a story he wanted to be part of.

Sometimes in services with children, I have a box, and put a mirror in the bottom of it. I tell the children – in this box is a picture of the person God cares most about, that Jesus died for, that the Holy Spirit wants to share life with. I then pass the box around. It is wonderful to see faces light up as people see the picture of the person God cares most about – their own picture in the mirror!

At last history is seeing the story of the ordinary person as being central to the process of understanding the past. It lines up with God’s ways. God sees the individual, each individual as being central to his love, his salvation, his calling. He sees you and your story as central to his life. There is something to really rejoice in here!

Yours in Christ,

Les

Pastoral Care

One of the important purposes of Christ’s church is to provide the love and care we all need.

If you, or anyone you know, would like a visit from a priest or the opportunity for a confidential chat and a prayer, please contact the Revd. Les Ireland, who will be happy to help in any way he can.

St. Cyprian’s also has a number of people who are authorised to visit and simply be a trusted friend who can be there to listen if you wish. Les can put you in touch with an appropriate person that may be best qualified to help. Please telephone Les on 0141-776 3866.

Inspiration

– Two “Unlikely” Davids!

There have been people for whom the press have been particularly unkind, often creating a dreadful picture of them, or even worse – a completely false picture. The sad thing is – many Christians simply believe the press, rather than attempt to understand the reality.

The press does this for a couple of reasons. Sometimes it is simply malice: attacking someone who threatens their interest, or their amorality. More often it is simply lack of understanding – the journalist simply cannot understand what the person may be saying, so write a few “miss-quotes” or try to write what they think they are saying, ending up completely misrepresenting what they are trying to say. Too often the words created by the press are those believed by Christians, rather than listening to the person speaking for themselves. I was lucky to meet two such people – David Jenkins and David Hope.

David Jenkins was the former Bishop of Durham, accused by many of causing a major fire at York Minster just before his consecration as Bishop. The press presented him as a man who didn’t believe in the resurrection. He was vilified by the press, and by many Christians. I remember him saying – he could not believe Christians were capable of such hatred as he experienced in the huge bags of mail he received. So, what do I know of him?

Firstly he was from Manchester Diocese, and was non-stipendiary curate in the largest conservative evangelical church in the diocese – Holy Trinity Platt – while teaching theology at Manchester University. No-one there found him unorthodox on the resurrection – he was a greatly loved preacher!

Secondly, almost all of his problems were caused by one phrase, where he allegedly described the resurrection as “A magician’s trick with bones.” I spent time reading the article he wrote, and he certainly used the phrase, a phrase the press grasped because they couldn’t understand what he was really saying.

What was he really saying? This – he was saying it is not enough for Christians to demand belief in the resurrection. Christians had to proclaim WHY the resurrection mattered. Why is it so important? Because – if you cannot say why it is important, why it matters, all you are doing is proclaiming the resurrection as a Magician's trick with bones. It was a vital challenge to many of my generation. Yes, I believe in the resurrection, and always did. David Jenkins was saying – Good, now why is it important? Why does it matter to you? Why is the resurrection so important to you as a Christian. It was a challenge the church needed to hear.

I was lucky to hear him speak, and answer questions – and he was a man of real faith. He acknowledged he had made mistakes, had been naive. That applies to all of us. He described the horrendous level of hatred he had been on the end of by Christians. And he talked about a deep and profound love of Jesus Christ. His reputation in Durham diocese was of a man who cared passionately for his diocese, and particularly the poor of his diocese.

The second David – David Hope, former Archbishop of York. David Hope suffered in a different way in the press, who spent a lot of time, because he was single, making allusions to him being gay. He ended up being very guarded in any dealings with the press, and came over as quiet and lacking in any drive or Charisma. That was the image I had of him!

Then.....

When we were in Oldham, at the church there, David Hope visited our diocese, and was brought to our church, which was having terrible dry-rot and structural problems. He had been taken to all sorts of wonderful church projects. He was brought to us as an example of the worst a church can be. (I still remember some diocesan report which described our parish as “The worst parish in Manchester Diocese!”). For the time he was with us he was fantastic. He genuinely listened. He clearly identified with the struggles we were having. And he prayed with us. Both myself and Lucy remember that 30 odd minutes as one of the high spots in our ministry in the church. David Hope lived up to his name – in a dire situation, in terms of the building, he gave us hope. A hope which carried us through an incredibly difficult time.

David Jenkins and David Hope both suffered as a result of the press, and Christians willing to trust the press rather than find out the truth. In both cases, I was lucky to find out the truth and, particularly with David Hope, experience a moment of the blessing and power of God that has stayed with us for 20 years.

Les

As has become our custom, we held a joint Eucharistic Service with our sister Branches from Cumbernauld and Bishopbriggs at our September meeting. The theme for the service was 'Fellowship' which proved to be a very interesting and thought provoking topic. We gave everyone who came one of the letters of this word, and they then had to think of another word beginning with that letter which spoke of fellowship to them. These words are listed below.

Forgiveness, Friends, Friendship, Freedom
Encouragement, Empathy, Enrichment, Embracing
Longing, Love
Laughter
Offering (of ourselves),
At One with each other
Welcome, Worship, Wonderful
Sharing, Spiritual
Help, Holiness, Happiness
Incredible friends, Inviting Participation, Prayer, Purity,
Peace, Passion, People.

Lucy Ireland was our celebrant that evening and her address developed our theme very well. She talked about true fellowship not being possible unless we have humility and a willingness to be honest with one another. Disagreement should not mean division and this was especially relevant as the result of the Scottish Referendum was in everyone's minds at that time.

In October, our speaker was Vivienne Parry who gave a very interesting talk on the work of the Christian charity 'Tearfund'. Vivienne has supported Tearfund for many years, and described the way that they work clearly. Monies raised are used to train aid workers who then go to areas of the world where they are needed most. Tearfund Scotland is at the moment twinned with workers in Ethiopia. Aid workers help to set up women's self-help groups. These groups then work together, overcoming the particular problems of poverty that they are coping with in their local area.

Our next meeting will be on Wednesday 12th November at 1.30pm in the Choir Vestry. At this meeting we are hoping to plant bulbs in the church grounds, so helping with Les's gardening project. On 10th December we plan to have a Christmas afternoon, with mince pies and mulled wine and a few carols. Watch out for more details in the Link. Everyone is welcome at any of our meetings — please come along for a cup of tea and a chat.

Silent Organ

It may not be as old as the one illustrated above, but as everyone knows, our organ is not working at the moment, and is proving rather resistant to repair. The truth is that is coming to the end of its life!

We may be able to repair it on a temporary basis, but whatever, we will need to replace the organ in the near future. If we can repair it, we have a bit of time to choose an alternative, and raise the money to buy it. If we cannot repair it (and we should know for sure in the next few weeks) then it is a priority to replace the organ, then raise the money to replace the hole the purchase will leave in our finances — it is likely to cost us in the region of £20,000 to replace.

The vestry is on the job!!!

Firstly — we have to receive permission from the diocesan authorities to replace the organ. This should not be a problem, but it is an admin process we have to go through. We are in the process of applying for initial permission, and should be able to apply the day after our AGM.

Secondly — we have appointed a small group of expert and interested people to look at the options available, try out new organs, and recommend the most appropriate organ that they feel fulfils our needs.

Thirdly — we will in the near future set up an appropriate appeal to raise funds to purchase the organ. Of course, if people are keen to give, we are happy to receive donations now, but hopefully we will have our initial appeal in place in the next few weeks.

If there are any questions you have, or comments you want to make, please talk to the Rector. There will also be the opportunity to discuss the replacing of the organ at the AGM on the third Sunday in November.

Seven Decades of Service

On Friday, 3rd October, Poppy Scotland organisers presented Gill Inglis with a Golden Poppy to mark 50+ years as Coordinator of the annual Poppy Collections locally.

This took place in St. Cyprian's Church Hall in front of her family and friends including many who have also given long service to the Poppy Appeal.

We discovered that Gill had actually started volunteering as a teenager and had completed over seventy years of service to the charity.

The picture below shows the moment of being presented with the golden poppy, which is shown in close-up at the bottom of the page.

We congratulate Gill on her award.

Gill has now handed over the baton to Christine Morrison, who is now actively recruiting people to help with this year's collection.

Harvest Festival

We celebrated Harvest Thanksgiving on Sunday 5th October. Maxine made a Cornsheaf (or Harvest) loaf to mark the occasion. Isn't it magnificent? It's even got a little mouse poking out from the stalks!

A big thank you to Maxine and all the other people who decorated the church for the Festival.

Doors Open Day & Car Boot Sale

The last Car Boot Sale of the season coincided with Doors Open Day in East Dunbartonshire. The weather was kind and there was a good turnout making both events a great success. Thank you to all who helped in any way.

St. Cyprian's Grounds

A couple of magazines ago, I outlined the sort of vision I had for making the Church grounds at St. Cyprian's much more wildlife friendly. I was really encouraged by the response people had to the vision.

I have been given many packets of flower seeds, particularly wild flower mixtures to help create a wildlife meadow.

Someone in the church has made a number of bird boxes, bat boxes, including one nesting box for owls. Hopefully they will soon be sited in our church grounds.

The Mothers Union has dedicated an evening in their programme to planting bulbs to add to the wildlife impact.

I hope we will be able to build on this, and see our church grounds transformed, while maintaining the dignity of places such as the memorial gardens, and maintaining the welcoming part of the grounds.

One of the things about "visions" is that circumstances can quickly change them. It has happened with us. Originally I had a vision of a wildflower meadow around the northern side of the church, and a "nature larder" along the East side, behind the hall.

With the coming of Applebays – the group providing child care in our hall – part of the grounds have been fenced in to provide an outside play and activity area for children. We have done it with chestnut paling fencing to blend in with the "rustic" wildlife tone that we envisage for the grounds. In many ways it will not affect the area inside it – there will still be grass, shrubs and trees. It does mean that our "nature larder" will be a bit smaller than originally envisaged, but we still want cuttings and small soft fruit bushes to put in that area, near our apple tree. We will still have a wildflower meadow, but now it will be a bit further towards the west of the back of the church.

I always thought the vision would "develop," and I am glad it has. I'm really pleased people have got interested and encouraged by the vision. I'm hoping someone will step forward and say "Let me re-furbish the old church sign," and someone else step forward and say "It would be great to get together to design what we would like on an information panel for our grounds"

Of course we still need ideas, inspiration, and hopefully over the coming months we will see wildlife moving in, wildflowers showing forth – and if nothing else – let's keep talking about it!!

Les

Christmas Fayre

The Fayre will take place on 22nd November between 10am and 3pm. The church will be rearranged on Sunday 16th November after the AGM (unless folk are keen to make a start before the AGM!)

Thereafter, setting up of stalls in the church can be done during the week between 9am and 3pm and after 6pm, by arrangement with a key-holder.

Setting up of the Hall and the Choir Vestry will need to wait till after 6pm on Friday 21st, so lots of help will be needed then to get everything done in time.

We'll be having all the usual stalls and tearoom. They are all looking for donations especially home baking for the tearoom and baking stall.

The Jewellery Stall is looking for unwanted jewellery: necklaces, broaches, bracelets, bangles, rings, ear rings, watches, badges, etc. — old or new. Please turn out your drawers and hand to either Anne or Sheila or leave in the Choir Vestry. They will be very grateful for anything you can give.

Paul and Pat are looking for new items and bottles as prizes for the Tombola.

This is our biggest fundraising event of the year and we need everybody's help to make it a big success. There are jobs for everyone, whether you can manage only an hour or two or all day. We are looking for help with the heavy work of moving pews and boxes of goods during the set-up and clear-up periods and with serving in the tearoom and on the stalls on the day itself. Everyone is welcome and appreciated!

Saints and Heroes of the Season

In the Anglican church we remember many saints and heroes, but one particularly stands out this month:

Margaret of Scotland Day: 16th November

Margaret was born in exile in Hungary into an English Royal family in 1045, then from the age of 12 spent her teenage years in England, before her family fled to Scotland after the Norman invasion in 1066. Around 1070 she married King Malcolm III of Scotland. Of her 6 sons and 2 daughters, She was mother of three future kings of Scotland, and a future wife of the King of England, before her death in 1093 in Edinburgh, days after her husband was killed in battle with the Normans.

Margaret was famous for her piety and charitable works. In her private life she spent much time in prayer, Bible reading and religious embroidery. In public, she worked hard to reform religious life, to rebuild monastic life (e.g. on Iona), as well as establish new monasteries, particularly at Dunfermline. She spent much time working with the poor and beggars. Her husband Malcolm III was considered fairly “uncouth” but her influence on him was huge, and his love for her is clear.

Her final words were said to be a prayer: “Lord Jesus Christ who, according to the will of the Father, hast by Thy death given life to the world, deliver me.”

Margaret was canonised in 1250, and today many churches as well as other institutions (colleges and schools) are named after her. Now nicknamed “The Pearl of Scotland.” Sometimes called “The Patroness of Scotland.”

A Collect:

O God, who made Saint Margaret of Scotland wonderful in her outstanding charity towards the poor, grant that through her intercession and example we may reflect among all humanity the image of your divine goodness. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.
